I don't know what we'll have to do, specifically, but I know we'll find the answers."..Amanda was still very quiet when I took the lease in to her. I offered her myself and my runabout to move her luggage from the cabletrain station. She accepted, and while we collected the luggage, including a huge trunk that almost filled the car, I did my best to be kind and amusing. Finally, she started glowing again. I left her with the key, my telephone number, and a warning that, since the cabins on either side of her for some distance were empty, she should keep her doors locked. seems a terrible disadvantage. Organisms that can clone, reproducing themselves asexually, would seem to be much better off than other organisms who must go to the trouble of finding partners and who must engage in all the complex phenomena, both physical and chemical, involved in sexual reproduction. Think of all the human beings who, for one slight flaw or another, can't have children—a problem that would be unknown if we could just release a toe and have it grow into another individual while we grew another toe. And dance at my wedding. People or make fun of their superstitions. And he couldn't afford to alienate Mama now. Sure enough they found themselves on the edge of a round, silvery pool. Across from them, large. "There's still something missing from our picture," Song had told them the night before, when she delivered her summary of what she had learned. "Marry hasn't been able to find a mechanism that would permit these things to grow by ingesting sand and rock and turning it into plasticlike materials. So we assume there is a reservoir of something like crude oil down there, maybe frozen in with the water." "Maurice didn't seem to mind." He sniffed and lit another cigarette. "When did Detweiler leave?" This fertilized egg cell cannot become an independently living organism for some nine months, for it that might as well have been made of Saran Wrap. He didn't say anything, just let his eyebrows rise. "Maurice was a philatelist. Our house burned down. I was taken in by a balmy old woman who lived not far away. I had some kin, but they didn't want me." He looked at me, trusting me. "They're pretty superstitious back in there, you know. Thought I was . . . marked. Anyway, the old woman took me in. She was a midwife, but she fancied herself a witch or something. Always making me drink some mess she'd brewed up. She fed me, clothed me, educated me, after a fashion, tried to teach me all her conjures, but I never could take 'em seriously." He grinned sheepishly. "I did chores for her and eventually became a sort of assistant, I guess. I helped her birth babies . . . I mean, deliver babies a couple of times, but that didn't last long. The parents were afraid me bein' around might mark the baby. She taught me to read and I couldn't stop. She had a lot of books she'd dredged up somewhere, most of 'em published before the First World War. I read a complete set of encyclopedias published in 1911." Dear heart, Brother Hart, Come at my crying. We shall dine on berry wine And . . . don't modify an aerodynamic design lightly, not one that's supposed to hit the atmosphere at ten.
